WILSON WILL REMAIN IN WASHINGTON AS LONG AS CONGRESS CONTINUES AT WORK.
FEARS LONG SESSION
President Prepared to Stand the Heat and Will Stay at Post to Fight for Currency Legislation.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 24.—President Wilson intends to take no vacation while congress is in session and is determined to share any discomforts the hot season may bring. While he will have Friday to take his family to Cornish, N. H., he will return the following Monday unless congress has a recess over July 4.
The vice refrigerating plant under Mr. Wilson's office is no longer in operation and the temperature of the president's work room is no different than in any other part of Washington. Mr. Wilson says he is prepared to stand the heat and looks forward to a long session with currency legislation as the ultimate object.
Radical reform in the government's fiscal system to give the house committee the sole control of the big supply bills instead of their distribution among eight committees as at present, was urged in the house today by Representative Fitzgerald.
His speech was a fore-runner of the budget discussion in the democratic caucus tomorrow. Mr. Fitzgerald submitted a number of proposed amendments to the rules to carry out his plans.
Anti-free sugar democrats got together in the senate caucus today and agreed to support an amendment Senator Shafroth to eliminate the provision for free sugar in 1916 and substitute a duty of approximately one half cent a pound after that time on refined sugar.
The caucus set sugar aside temporarily, however, and approved the tobacco schedule without change, and also all the senate committee amendments to the agricultural schedule relating to live stock and grain.
Wheat and flour were left on the free list with a countervailing duty. Live stock and meats were left on the unrestricted free list. At six cents a bushel, oatmeal at thirty-two cents a hundred pounds, and barley at fifteen cents a bushel remain unchanged.
Shafroth Amendment.
The Shafroth amendment accepts the duties proposed in the Underwood bill upon the sugar for the next three years, including a rate on refined sugar until 1916, approximately one cent a pound. Canadian senators and those from beet sugar states are urging no fight to change those rates, but are urging their colleagues to abandon free sugar for a further 50 per cent reduction in 1916. The amendment is voted down. The anti-free sugar senators will have other alternatives to propose.
Provisions for inspecting books of foreign merchants, one per cent discount on imports in American ships and other features of the tariff bill which many foreign nations objected were eliminated in the revised schedule the finance committee drafted today.
The income tax feature was revised to exempt any portion of mutual life insurance premiums actually returned to policyholders as dividends. This change is believed to meet the objections against the former provision.
To Investigate.
The house judiciary committee, at a hearing Thursday, will investigate the delay ordered by Attorney General McReynolds in federal prosecution at San Francisco of Maury Diers and Drew C. Caminito, indicted under the white slave law, and officers of the Western Fuel company, indicted for conspiracy to defraud the customers.
Walsh.
Senator Walsh of Montana, resumed his anti-sugar speech today when the democratic caucus resumed. Ready to support an amendment to strike out the provision for free sugar in 1916 were Senators Williams, Randall, Thornton, and Williams. The sugar schedule promised to take up the entire day. Senator James planned to lead the defense. While the caucus battle will determine the strength the democrats are to have in support of the tariff bill on the senate floor the question of binding senators to the bill as approved by the caucus will not come up until all schedules and sections have been approved.

Revises Order Governing Rates for Physical Connection Between Two Companies—Increase Permitted.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 24.—The state railroad commission issued an order today revising its order of Nov. 12, 1912, governing rates for physical connection between the Western Crawford County Farmers' Mutual Telephone company. The action was brought by the Union Telephone company against the Western Crawford County Farmers' Telephone company, the People's Telephone company and the Farmers' Telephone company of Lancaster. This was a rehearing. Considerable dissatisfaction was felt over the working out of the order of last November and today's order is intended to grant relief to a companies concerned.
In an order by the railroad commission today, authority is given the Union Telephone company of Tishewille to increase its rates from 25 cents per month per subscriber to $4 per year per subscriber. Excess of earnings from operation over operating expenses last year were $21,300. The commission said that "it is doubtful if a return of $4 per year will properly meet the expenses of the utility unless it is the practice of subscribers to make some additional payments in the form of labor or material furnished."
The commission today settled the case brought by Nic. Straveler against the Marathon County Railway company and the Chicago & Northwestern railway company involving switching rates on logs. The companies being ordered to divide the revenues according to the joint rates established by the commission Aug. 27, 1912, on the mileage pro rata.

Decrease of Over Hundred Thousand Dollars in Last Two Months Shown in Banking Commissioner's Report.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 24.—In spite of the fact that the resources of Wisconsin banks have increased $24,203,861.09 in the past year the slight stringency in the money market showed its effect in the report of the banking commissioner, A. E. Knott, issued today. Compared with the quarterly report for April 1, 1913, the report of banks on June 1, 1913, showed a net decrease of $107,015.38. Usually there is an increase for the quarterly period approximating over a million dollars, and while the decrease is not precipitate, it is noticeable. The total resources on April 4 were $223,016,845.45 as compared with a total of $222,909,830.07 for June 4. The most striking decreases in the comparative resources for the two periods are $66,367.58 in overdrafts, $101,744.14 in United States, state, municipal and other bonds, $3,874.07 in real estate owned, and $2,234,511.77 in amounts due from approved reserve banks.
There was an increase of $2,584,450.26 in loans and discounts for the period. The total increases for the sources amounted to $3,597,158.29, as compared with decreases of $3,614,174.67. Under the head of liabilities, the surplus funds in all banks increased $51,287.03, while individual deposits subject to check decreased $1,308,069.26. There was an increase of $632,406.76 in demand certificates of deposits, and a decrease of $395,680.42 in time certificates of deposits. The deposits for the period just closed show a slight falling off from the previous report. Total deposits are $185,151,584.45 as compared with $186,158,677.72 in the previous period, a decrease of $20,517.88. The savings deposits increased $1,390,625.05. The number of state banks and trust companies is 625, an increase of three.

Malcolm Scott, Brother of Sir John Murray Scott, Opposes Probate—Undue Influence Charged.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 24.—London society crowded the probate court today at the beginning of the suit over the will of the late Sir John Murray Scott. Sir John left nearly five million dollars to him and his wife, Lady Park, wife of Baron Sackville, relative of a former British minister to Washington. Malcolm Scott, a brother of Sir John, opposes probate of the will on the ground that Baron and Lady Sackville used undue influence in order to obtain the bulk of the estate. He also claims that a codicil for which he was offered $50,000 reward, was executed after the drawing of the will for which the Sackvilles are named. By error of the court some time ago an envelope left by Sir John Murray Scott addressed to Lady Sackville, was opened, but it has not been disclosed whether it contained the missing codicil.
At the opening of the case for Malcolm Scott today his counsel outlined the general nature of the case.
"The Sackvilles," he said, "spent more than ten years in obtaining complete ascendancy and domination over Sir John Scott. The nature of that influence was such that although they were not relatives they induced him to finance their enormous sums during his lifetime and to leave them the greater part of his estate of five million dollars."
Sir John died on January 17th, 1912, after a most remarkable career. He was the son of a Scottish doctor, a very humble position. The doctor, however, was called in to attend the Marquis of Hereford. The marquis and his kinsman, Richard Wallace, took a dislike to him and Wallace appointed Dr. Scott's son his private secretary. He served in that capacity for many years and eventually induced Wallace to present the famous Wallace art collection to the British nation, for which Wallace was made a baronet. Sir John's fortune was bequeathed to him by Lady Wallace, who left him about five million in money and some large properties in France.

Ten Million Dollar Corporation Organized to Fight Harvester Trust Now Without Directors.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 24.—Officers and directors of the Independent Harvester company, a ten million dollar corporation, whose methods of stock selling have been under investigation by the department of justice, will resign this afternoon. It was stated today by Stephen S. Gregory, attorney for the company.
The corporation was organized in 1905 with 27,000 stockholders, mostly farmers and the pronounced policy was to fight the harvester trust by co-operative action from stockholders.
Last January, farmers, holding six million dollars of the stock held an indignation meeting at which it was asserted that the harvester trust farmers at an inflated price and it was demanded that President Thompson account for $350,000 in stocks alleged to have been held by him.
Thompson declined to do so and the whole matter was placed in the hands of the department of justice.

BOYS TEACH FATHERS.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears an article showing the progress of boy corn-growers in Hamilton County, Tennessee, where fifty-two boys entered the contest in 1912 and secured an average yield per acre of ninety-one bushels. The highest average yield in Hamilton county was twenty-five bushels, and the average for the state twenty-six. The boys obtained their information from the United States department of agriculture. Following is an extract from the article:

"At a meeting of the boys, early in the spring I turned to an old gentleman sitting near by, at the conclusion of an address by one of Uncle Sam's demonstrators, agents, and asked, 'What do you think of it?' referring to the expert's explanation of the new method of raising corn. 'Sounds fine,' he replied, 'and looks good on paper, but it won't work out on the farm. I've been raising corn all my life, and I think I know a thing or two about farming. However, if my boy wants to try it, he can have any piece of ground I've got, and I'll help him, for I want him to have a chance at everything that comes along. If he does more corn one-acre than I do, five, I'll quit, that my father, grandfather and I were all wrong, and begin farming the boy's way.'"

"The old gentleman's boy, secured the third largest yield in the county this year and at an average cost of only fifteen cents per bushel, on upland. I saw the father the other day and reminded him of our former conversation. He had learned the lesson and enthusiastically told me of his plans for the coming year."

That's what scientific farming is doing for the boys of the new generation, and the experience down in Tennessee is being repeated in all the corn-growing states. There was a time, and not so long ago, when any innovation on an old established method, was regarded as a sacrilege. This was true, not only in the field of agriculture, but in almost every other department, but we are living today in the realm of ideas, and the man who has anything new to offer, which will increase product, and reduce cost, has no trouble to gain an audience, and his services are in demand.

GOING SOME.

It is worth something to know that the Wisconsin legislature has finally decided to adjourn July 1, after a six months' session, in which new laws have been passed, and eighteen million dollars appropriated for running expenses. That's "going some," to say the least.

The state of Wisconsin may be a model state, in many ways. The senator who takes credit for the model, says that the federal government is a decade behind the Badger state procession, and he ought to know, but it will never be quite perfect, until a sixty day limit is put on the state legislature.

It is safe to assume that of the 524 measures, which have become laws, that at least 500 of them could be eliminated, without detriment to the state. The people who pay the bills are becoming weary of a continuous vaudeville performance at Madison, and are praying for a rest.

The salary of our law-makers ought to be reduced, rather than increased. If the pay was half what it is now, many of these patriots might get tired of the job, and be satisfied to adjourn, after a reasonable time.

The game of politics is played in Wisconsin, is an all-absorbing game, and the men who engineer it are light contributors, when it comes to paying the bills. The public crib is supplied by orders to "go out and get the mon," and the demand for coin is constantly increasing. Great is reform.

Janesville residents do not half appreciate the wonderful possibilities of the river as an outing and recreation place. Some day the entire shores from the city limits to Indian Ford will be dotted with cottages and summer homes, and launches will ply back and forth, and then the citizens will awake to the real situation.

Beloit boosters are out boosting their city for the Fourth of July celebration. Edgerton also has something doing all the Fourth and with the Irish picnic at Evansville, Wednesday, auto races here the same day and races at the Driving Park association on the Fourth, lovers of sports have much to choose from, from now on.

The Twenty-five Thousand club is steadily saving wood and saving nothing, but watch the results. It will be surprising. There are several good things on the fire now, just sizzling, but when the pot begins to boil it will be a feast fit for a king.

Tuesday, July 8th, is the date set for the primary election and decision as to bond issue to rebuild the Milwaukee street bridge. Two important questions which behoove every citizen to turn out and register his wishes on these important subjects.

It might be well to see that the state law relative to compelling boats plying the waters within the city limits to comply with the city ordinance and it might be a good thing for the officials to see that this provision is enforced at least.

MACHINE COMPANY'S SALESMEN IN CITY AT ANNUAL MEETING

Thirty-five Traveling Agents of Janesville Machine Company Are Here for Lectures and Demonstrations.

Thirty-five agents and traveling salesmen who represent the Janesville Machine Company in the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, North and South Dakota, are in the city this week for their twentieth annual meeting which is being held at the offices of the company on South Franklin street. The convention opened Monday and will continue through Saturday.

The program for the week includes lectures and addresses by the heads of the departments during the morning sessions and demonstrations of the various farm implements which are manufactured by the company at the farms of the Hohenadel Canning company south of the city, in the afternoon. The visitors accompanied by officials of the company, leave each day on the two o'clock interurban car which is provided with a trailer for their special accommodation, and return late in the afternoon. Harrows of all descriptions were demonstrated on the farm yesterday, and cultivators will be shown today.

Wednesday and Thursday the company's plows will be demonstrated and on Friday planters and listers will receive the careful attention of the agents.

Special provisions for the entertainment of the salesmen have been made. They are provided with lodging and meals at the Grand and Myers hotels. On Friday they will enjoy a picnic at Yost park and on Saturday evening a banquet will be given in their honor at the Myers hotel, at which the directors of the company will be present. A number of informal talks regarding the business of the company will be given.

This convention of the salesmen is an annual affair and has proved most valuable in that it brings closer together the manufacturing and salesmanship branches of the concern. The agents learn much in regard to the implements handled and receive important instructions which prove valuable to them in their field of work.

S. B. LEWIS IS DEAD AT LONG BEACH, CAL.

F. F. Lewis Receives Word of the Death of His Brother Who Was Connected With Lewis Knitting Company.

A telegram from Rollin Lewis, received this morning, announced the death of his father, which occurred at his home in Long Beach, California, at six o'clock last evening.

Rollin Lewis was born in the town of Turtle in 1848. While yet a child the family removed to Portage where his boyhood was spent. After graduating from the high school he entered the state normal at Whitefish Bay, Wis., and was later elected superintendent of schools at Clinton, where he remained for ten years, and then returned to Portage to engage in the manufacturing business with his father and brother, F. F. Lewis.

Starting in a small way, and developing under many difficulties, the business was established, and some years later incorporated as the Lewis Knitting company, and removed to Janesville, where it has long been recognized as one of the city's leading industries.

On account of failing health Mr. S. B. Lewis retired from the company some half dozen years ago, and was later removed to Long Beach, California, hoping that a change of climate would check the progress of disease.

After years of patient suffering, much of the time in an almost helpless condition, death came to his relief, and the tired spirit passed on to the life beyond.

Mr. Lewis was a modest, unassuming man, but his every day life was so honest and straightforward that it was an inspiration to all with whom he came in contact, and he left an impression on the community for good. He was a consistent member of the Congregational church, and for many years a deacon. There was nothing spasmodic or emotional about his religion. His creed was practical and beneficent, and he was a generous man who recognized common brotherhood, with charity for all mankind.

The life of such a man is its own best eulogy, and it can be truthfully said of Mr. Lewis that the world is better because he journeyed through it. To his wife and son who remain as members of his immediate family, the memory of this life will linger as a benediction to the friends who knew him by the way, will come the thought of many pleasant associations.

Mr. Lewis was married in 1878 to Miss Elsie Church, daughter of Samuel and Sarah White Church of Whitewater. Beside the wife and son, two brothers remain, F. F. Lewis of this city and W. L. Lewis of Pasadena, Cal.

Funeral services will be held at his late home, 416 Atlantic Avenue, Long Beach, tomorrow, and the remains will rest in the cemetery of that city.

Michael Griffin.
Funeral services for the late Michael Griffin will be held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock from the St. Patrick's church, the Rev. E. E. Reilly officiating.

WHO GOT THE RUG?
Before announcing the winner of the sidewalk rug, it will be sent by express to the Whittall company to be thoroughly cleaned, as they have exceptional facilities. It will be promptly returned and displayed in our window with the winner's name attached—perhaps by Saturday.

Wanders From Home: George Keeter, Jr., for year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Keeter, 312 E. Mary's avenue, wandered from home this morning and was found near the Strampe grocery on Washington street in the first ward. The youngster was none the worse for his long trip but his parents were much worried until he was finally located.

RABBI MAY REPEAT MARRIAGE CEREMONY

Rabbi M. N. Schomer of Beloit, Who Married Couple on Illinois License Seeks to Right Matters.

Rabbi M. N. Schomer of Beloit, who by his marriage of a couple on an Illinois marriage license on June 16, made himself liable to a fine of $500 under the Wisconsin laws through his ignorance of the same is anxious to put matters right and may make a trip to Chicago to repeat the marriage ceremony. In company with his daughter, Rabbi Schomer this morning visited the office of County Clerk Laaban, who secured a marriage license in Cook county on June 7. It is understood that according to the Illinois laws where the bride is a resident of the state the wedding can be performed any place in the state. This would make it possible for them to have the ceremony performed legally at South Beloit and this may be done if the Rabbi does not go to Chicago. Changing of the date of the ceremony stated in the license is permissible.

SPORT Snap-Shots

Perhaps, if all batters always hit, and fielders never muffed the ball, and pitchers never blew a bit, and umpires never were wrong at all, and teams always copped the game, and runners always stole a base, and batting rallies always came, and teams all landed in first place, then maybe—(here's one on the wrist!)—The anvil chorus would desist!

Pugs Throw Flowers. Wolgast speaks of Ritchie as the "straw champion," it isn't uncommon that a defeated champ says unkind things about his conqueror. But Nelson spoke of Wolgast as the "cheese" champ. Old John L. always spoke of Corbett as the "gude runner." Corbett called Bob Fitzsimmons "roughneck." Joe Gans, whom someone called the "whitest coon" that ever lived—and which was very proud of—never threw mud. And when But Nelson had grabbed the belt from him at Colma, Gans had nothing but praise for the new title holder. "A tough bird," said Joe, "the man that licks him will have to use a club."

Put Pep into 'Em. Joe Birmingham, who is putting pep in the Cleveland outfit, has had only a few years' experience in the big show and is making a remarkable record for so young a manager. When Birmingham took hold of the Naps they were about as lively and full of scrap as a bunch of nice tame pullets. This season they have shown more get-up-and-get than one would have supposed possible, and they're winning the respect and regard of all the opposition. Birmingham took charge at a time when there was considerable ill feeling among the various members and he replaced this with a hearty and spirited team-work.

Can He Be Good? Heinie Zimmerman, of the Cubs has been presented with a $100 bill by an enthusiastic admirer. Of course the half of a $100 bill isn't worth $50, as might seem at first thought, and in fact it isn't worth anything at all by itself. But the other half makes it worth $100 should be get it, and Heinie has it coming to him if he behaves on the diamond and doesn't quarrel with the umpire. This unique proposition was made by a fan who seems to have plenty of rocks and who is anxious to see Zimmerman deport himself properly, so that he will always be on hand to wallow the ball when needed. Heinie has been put off the job a few times in the last week or so, but allows that he's going to cop the $100 and go through fussing with umpires for good.

The engine is the work of the steam department of the big Case plant which is in charge of another Janesville boy, Wallace McGregor.

AUTO RACE ENTRIES HAVE ALL ARRIVED; TO SMASH RECORDS

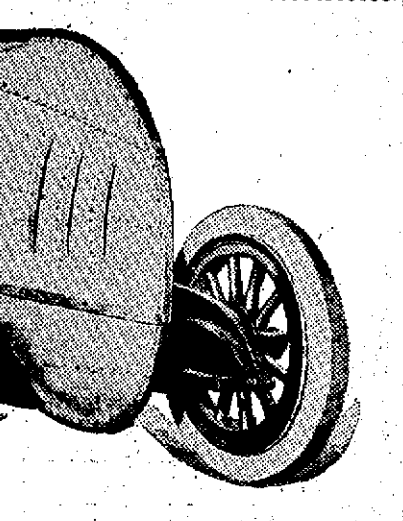

Louis Disbrow Promises Mile in 55 Seconds—Free-for-alls Big Competition Events. Janesville looks like a real automobile racing center today with seven of the fastest cars in the world in their respective classes and five famous pilots here for the big auto race meet Wednesday afternoon. Not an entry has failed to arrive in the city and the largest gathering of auto fans that ever witnessed a race meet in southern Wisconsin is expected to fill the Janesville Park Association grounds when the starter waves his flag for the first event of the program.

Two sprinkling wagons will work all night wetting the track to place it in the fastest condition possible and before tomorrow night the Janesville track will have some new auto records. Louis Disbrow has declared that he would drive the track in 55 seconds, or better, and Wild Bill Endicott says he will demonstrate that the short turns can be driven with his big six Tornado faster than any big car has ever turned the mile course in competition.

One of the big events of the program will be Disbrow's attempt to lower the five mile record of 4:40 which he set for the state of Illinois. The third lap of the five mile dash against time will be for a mile track record. The big competition events will be the two free-for-alls. The class D entered by Disbrow, Nikrent and Endicott, all driving 450 cu. in. cars and the handicap free-for-all entered by all five drivers, taking part in the meet.

The drive with the 290 H. P. Jay-Eye-See dreadnaught will probably be the most thrilling of the afternoon as the ability of the great monster to reach 70 miles an hour within the space of 500 feet can be demonstrated on the long stretches of the track here. To pilot this dreadnaught around the short turns will be the most dangerous work of the afternoon and the spectators are warned to stay away from the turns.

The meet will be in charge of Mr. Raymond A. A. representative of Milwaukee, who will act as referee. The program as announced today contains eight events with cars of two classes in competition and two world's record holding cars in time trials. A novelty race of two miles showing how the rapid fire and wheel changes are made during the great Indianapolis 500 mile race, will be one of the interesting events to those who have never witnessed a wheel change in from 25 to 30 seconds. The complete program is as follows:

BEING AFRAID TO BE HAPPY.

"C" HEREUPON, the best is yet to come. Not long ago I asked a young married friend of mine who, after a very stormy girlhood, had entered the safe harbor of a happy married life, and is the wife of a devoted husband, the mother of an adorable baby, and the mistress of an ideal little home, "If she were not perfectly happy."

Is it right to feel in this way about happiness? The brief darkening of the sun by an April cloud. "Yes I am," she said, "except that it seems too good to be true. I'm so happy that I'm afraid."

I think she expressed a feeling that is familiar to most of us. The fear of happiness is almost as old as the desire for it. We distrust happiness. We seem to hold our breath, as it were, lest we destroy the bubble of joy.

In "Anna of the Five Towns" Arnold Bennett says of Anna, who is so happy to find that Myrora is in love with her, that she can hardly believe in her good fortune. "Like most of us she looked the high courage to grasp happiness boldly and without apprehension; she had not learned that nothing is too good to be true."

I always dread to be happy, a very temperamental young girl used to say to me at college, "because I know that I'll probably be unhappy afterwards, and it's so hard to come down from the heights."

I wonder how much she has fixed belief that she would have to be unhappy afterwards had in producing that result. Is it right to feel in this way about happiness? Is it grateful to the All-Giver to taint the happiness which he grants us by distrusting its continuance? Happiness is really the normal rather than the abnormal condition. When men and women keep themselves in touch with the laws of nature and in general live in a normal way, they have a pretty good chance for happiness. Children, who are the most normal of men, are almost always happy. "Heaven lies about us in our infancy," it is only around the growing boy that shades of the prison house of fear and distrust begin to close.

Nothing is too good to be true. Believe that and you will make it so for yourself. I cannot remember just who it was who said to me each morning, "I believe that today is the best day of my life," but I am sure he added much to his share of happiness by that attitude.

Now please don't say, "Oh just some more of that New Thought nonsense," and put it impatiently out of your mind.

Nothing is too good to be true. Not even that fact itself. So cheer up, the best is yet to come.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

Today's talk should be labeled "The Woman Who Pretends." How many of the women who each day sit down to read this paper are victims of this pernicious habit?

There's small use in denying that women are inclined to be morbid, to cross a bridge before they come to it and to predict a melancholy future in general for the family.

There seems much in our present life to foster this morbidness in women of today seem bent on asking themselves the question "What was I created for," and they often are not able to satisfactorily answer the question.

The trouble in this begins when we decide (to ourselves) that we were created for something better than anything we have. This is a favorite grievance of many women and a man will be serenely content in "roughing it" a woman will grow bitter and morbid if she can't have a house and clothes like the woman in the next door or on the next block.

It doesn't seem to make any difference that the man next door has been with the company he is working for longer than her husband, and consequently better qualified to draw a larger salary, or that the folks on the next farm have been married longer and are now on a place of their own.

Can't we American women ever learn the relative value of things and not be so beset with ambition? The greatest things in life are the most common everyday happenings, and the hardest to write about, but what I am trying to say to my women readers today is that we women want to face the truth and realize it—live up to it. We are apt to think that life is a gray walled prison and joy and happiness is withheld by a cruel fate from us. The blue sky is above and all of us can at least get a peep at it. The trouble is we don't look up enough. We take a melancholy satisfaction in looking for calamities and make our lives and the lives of our nearest and dearest miserable with our dire forebodings. And what's the use?

We can all substitute beauty for ashes if we try and trying decides that come what may we will all keep serenely on our way and not "jump the track" at every little trouble that crops up.

Whenever you improve a spot in God's creation you help the whole world and work with God himself. Why not decide to live content with what you have and daily improve your own little spot—ourselves and our homes?

One summer while living in the far west help was impossible except for John Chinaman, who did the washing, but the linen became so yellow that in one of my wild moments I decided with all the extras I had to do away with it. My husband came home unexpectedly and caught me in the act. We settled it right there. This was his argument:

When I was gone there would be no more of "me." But there would always be table linen. So for that summer at least we would buy plain crash and make napkins and have simple, inexpensive clothes and let John have them cream color or any color he chose and my husband at least would be only too glad to use them. I soon saw the good sense of all this and put my desire for fine linens aside and agreed to use the other and save myself.

We followed out the same plans with our Sunday meals. "Fast" strict, and eating out of doors whenever there was the least possible excuse for it," was our slogan from that time on. Sundays we went to early service; then, with a lunch box with plenty of good sandwiches and fruit, we went to the back of a comfortable buggy with our little daughter, her doll and pet dog, magazines and newspapers, and there lived with Nature the rest of the day.

THIS TAILOR SUIT A SUMMER FAVORITE

Materials—Silk, chicken salad or capers, one tablespoon; olives, four; gherkin, one; sweet green pepper, one; tongue, two tablespoons; ham, one tablespoon; white meat of a chicken, one tablespoon; mayonnaise, salt and paprika.

Directions—Buy a small round roll. One that is crispy and tender with a "button" on top is very nice for these sandwiches. Cut off a little of the top or remove the button and scoop out the center, leaving only the shell. Save the top. If you use the chicken filling, pack with the nasturtium or rose leaves in a box and cover with a damp cloth.

If the second filling is desired, chop capers, olives, gherkin and pepper in the little chopping bowl. Put the meat through the chopper, using the medium cutter. Season mix all together and moisten with mayonnaise and proceed as with chicken salad filling.

Cream puffs baked in long slender shapes like eclairs, may be split apart at the ends and have side then filled with either of the above fillings.

ERUPTION LIKE PIMPLES ON FACE

Developed Into Sores. Would Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Completely Cured Him.

Watkins, Kan. "My child's scalp trouble became so bad that I was ashamed to have anyone see him. His head had a solid scab on it. He also had a terrible breaking out on his face which was gradually growing worse. The eruption was like pimples which developed into sores when he scratched which he did almost constantly. Baby would almost scratch himself raw."

"I had used several different kinds of ointments, none of them helping in the least bit, when I saw the Cuticura advertisement in the paper and it made me think of the good results my sister had when she used it for her children. I had only used Cuticura Soap and Ointment about two weeks before I noticed that the sores were almost entirely gone and it must have been a month or six weeks before I would get easy when I cut the Cuticura Ointment on him. I cut the Cuticura Ointment completely cured him and he has a clear complexion now." I also use Cuticura Ointment on the older children's heads and find it leaves the hair soft and silky. (Signed) Mrs. W. H. Hughes, Dec. 31, 1911.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

NOTORIETY.

By Howard L. Ramm.

NOTORIETY is a field form of advertising which some men are willing to contract for at scale rates, while others attempt to subdue it by dividing their property with the plaintiff.

There are several kinds of notoriety, any one of which will pursue a man to the edge of the grave and fresco his mind with slanders. It is a member of the church in good standing orders a case of malt contract for the sole use of a sick wife, the expressman won't be two blocks down the street before six neighbors will be willing to make an affidavit that he returned home night before last in a tangled state and tried his night key on the outside cellar door. This kind of notoriety is hard to live down than a reputation for frequenting church suppers in the degrading appetite.

Another popular brand of notoriety is that which a man gains by walking down the street with somebody else's wife. By doing this twice in a month, an esteemed citizen will establish to the perfect satisfaction of all concerned that he is a desperate and hardened flirt and should be labored with by the vestry.

An easy and inexpensive method of securing notoriety is to own the only pair of white duck pants in town and spring them with an apologetic look upon an outraged community.

If the white duck pants that now lie in cedar chests, after one timid stroll up Main street, could be brought to life and beauty, they would form a procession that would reach from coast to coast.

Newspaper notoriety consists of a large, plain spoken scare head, followed by a column and a half of agitated guesswork, the part of the reporter's mind still in the county jail and paying the attorney fees.

That I have been eminently successful in all chronic diseases is proven by the satisfactory results obtained in difficult and long standing cases which had baffled the skill of many other physicians.

Being a graduate of one of the best schools of regular practice in this country, having had vast hospital experience and many years of extensive practice, I have become so proficient that I can locate and explain your trouble in a few moments. It costs no more to be under the care of an experienced physician than an inexperienced one.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McCaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing ::

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

"By the way," resumed Mr. Hurley, puffing with a smoker's appreciation of a treat, "in line with your theory that it was an old servant who was blackmailing, it occurred to me that they used to have a coachman who may have a grievance because the chauffeur supplanted him."

The detective was impressed. "Do you remember his name?" he inquired, picking up a pencil.

"No, but I suppose the family would have it."

"Thanks. I'll look him up."

"I saw the Tolworthy & Mead personal in the morning paper," remarked Hurley, "and I thought it might be a new clew, but they say not. They referred me to you."

"Yes," Kayton nodded frankly.

"They consulted me. You see, it appears that in Mr. Argyle's will, drawn up by the old head of the firm, there was a legacy to a Miss Nellie Marsh. There's no knowledge now in that office of Nellie Marsh. The information evidently rested only with old Mr. Tolworthy and Mr. Argyle. The firm asked me how to locate her, thinking there might be some scandal."

"Yes, yes!" chimed in Mr. Hurley, betraying a hasty concealed eagerness. "And for that reason?" continued Kayton, apparently without noticing the other's manner, "we used only the initials. Did you ever hear Mr. Argyle refer to a Miss Marsh?"

Mr. Hurley stroked his chin.

"Well, now, I'll tell you about that," he said reflectively. "When we were discussing the new will we didn't get to the lesser legacies."

"Oh, it's too large a sum to have been simply a bequest to an old servant!" protested Kayton. "It runs well up in the thousands."

"Well, in that case," said Mr. Hurley, without interest, "the person will probably be expecting to be remembered by Mr. Argyle and show up."

"Oh, yes," agreed Kayton. "The whole thing may be perfectly innocent, but to avoid anything unpleasant for the family the lawyers thought they had better be on the safe side. By the way, Mr. Hurley, you understand, of course, that this is strictly confidential!"

"Oh, of course—of course!" exclaimed the lawyer hastily. The telephone bell rang, and as Kayton turned to the instrument Mr. Hurley rose.

"Well, I won't take up any more of your time," he said.

"Going so soon? Well, come in again, Mr. Hurley," invited the detective.

"Thank you, I will," declared the lawyer. "I shall be interested to hear if there's any new development in the case."

"I'll keep you posted," Kayton assured him, and with a nod Mr. Hurley withdrew.

"Ask Mr. Colt to come right in," said Kayton into the phone.

CHAPTER IX.

"Is it a counterfeit?"

MR. COLT proved to be large and of a generous and well-fed appearance. He was over six feet high and fully that in circumference. He was under forty, dressed well, and his face beamed good nature.

"Hello, Colt!" exclaimed Kayton with real cordiality as he entered.

"Hello, you old plutocrat!" bellowed the newcomer, with an expansive grin as he rolled to the desk. He gazed about him appreciatively. "You've got an office here like a bloated senator. What are you tryin' to do with that $100 bill?"

"Is it a counterfeit?" parried Kayton.

"A dandy!" declared Mr. Colt enthusiastically, as he sank into the chair lately vacated by Mr. Hurley; the chair fairly shrieking its protests. "It's such a mighty good counterfeit! It's better than the real! You've got the luck of a drunken Indian. Go out on a footy murder case and stub your toe on a thing like this!" Mr. Colt took his massive head mournfully over the injustice of the world. "Let me tell you—it's a bomb under the treasury! We've wired Washington and they've got a scare out all over the country. If you turn up the man who made this bill you can have anything Uncle Sam can give you! I never have any luck like that!"

Kayton took the bill from him and examined it critically. He had been something of an expert in his earlier days and he could appreciate art.

"How do you suppose they ever put it together?" he murmured wonderingly.

"Well, it's a photographic process—that's a cinch!" declared Colt. "No hand ever touched that plate. Look at the lute work!"

"And look at the ink!" exclaimed Kayton.

"Perfect!" pronounced the government agent solemnly. "How'd you ever get on to it?"

"Why," replied Kayton modestly, "some of these silk fibers struck me as being off color."

"Say," exclaimed the fattest man in the federal government, with a laugh that was half mirth and half nervous awe, "this sort of thing is going to knock the currency into a cocked hat! Pretty soon you won't be able to take money from a man unless he gives you a Masonic grip with it. And you mean to tell me that you found that bill in a millionaire's desk?"

"I admit it's impossible," smiled Kayton, "but I did it."

Colt stared incredulously. "That a man in Argyle's position would mix himself up with a band of criminals who'd blackmail him for the rest of his life?"

Kayton nodded and shrugged his shoulders.

"He may have been non compos mentis—just plain crazy," he suggested musingly, holding up the bill. "Talk about mysteries, Colt! This is the only real mystery I ever met!"

"Have you got any clew?"

Kayton leaned back. "Well, I'm playing a long shot," he returned evasively. "Couldn't any of you experts down at the office give a wild guess whose work this was?"

Colt shook his head gloomily. "No. There isn't a counterfeit on the books could do it. The man that got that together has been quietly experimenting for years."

Kayton nodded again and called to Manning to hand him the list that he had been compiling. The chief glanced over it.

"How about Brockton?" he inquired, looking up at the government expert. Colt shook his head violently.

"He hasn't been out long enough."

"Could old man Rich have done it?"

"Oh, no! He's too feeble. It may be a new corner, but I know."

Kayton dropped the list on the desk. "Well, I've got a kind of lead that it's one of the Frisco bunch that was rounded up fifteen years ago," he declared.

"What do you mean?" inquired Colt with a business like interest that he usually concealed under his easy looking exterior. His exterior, by the way, was one of his strongest assets. The fat did not penetrate to his brain.

"Joe, get me those Frisco wires."

He glanced over the bundle of telegrams and went on.

"There was a woman indicted—a Frisco woman—in the background of the Argyle murder case. She was supposed to be dead. I wired for information and found she'd been sent to prison with a gang of counterfeiters. Here it is:

"Nellie Marsh sentenced to San Quentin for three years about time of reported death." And this one says: "N. M. left state expiration of sentence. No further record here! Now, you know, Colt, the man that made the plate for the Webster gang—his name is Kreiser—did some pretty crafty work, and he hasn't been heard from since."

Colt drew a very audible breath, and his big eyes gleamed.

"That's so!" he declared. "By gad! That bill hooked up with Argyle and Argyle with the woman and the woman with the Webster gang makes a noise like a lockstep, don't it? I swear you've certainly got the luck!"

"I haven't got the woman or the man," returned Kayton grimly.

"But you'd get 'em," ventured Colt, "even if you didn't have the whole United States secret service turned loose to help you." And with a hearty handshake he left the room.

"Business of seeing the chief," he vouchsafed as he passed out.

Kayton picked up the receiver of his desk phone.

"Get me Tolworthy & Mead," he said into the mouthpiece and then glanced up at Manning, who had entered.

"Joe, we've got all the rocks flying with that counterfeit, haven't we?"

"Yes, I was just thinking," added the young man whimsically, "that murder was hard on the Argyles, but it was a great thing for the government."

Kayton tried to look reproving, but he choked, and a voice on the wire saved his dignity.

It was the younger Mr. Tolworthy. He informed Kayton that the quarry had risen to the love of the fake "personal." Some ten minutes before a woman had called up the law office on the telephone and told Mr. Tolworthy that she was Nellie Marsh. He had referred her to Kayton, and Kayton might expect a call at any moment.

There was a triumphant gleam in Kayton's eyes as he threw the receiver on to the book with a rush.

"Joe," he commanded sharply, "tell the outer office if any woman comes from Tolworthy & Mead I want to see her right away."

"N. M. heard from, governor?" asked Manning eagerly.

"Well, some woman called up Tolworthy & Mead a few minutes ago."

"Just after Hurley left?" said Manning significantly.

They exchanged glances. "Exactly," said Kayton. "He swallowed it—book, line and sinker."

Manager Leischmann stepped inside the office.

"Miss Mazurek—to see you," he said.

"Show her in," said Kayton, in matter of fact fashion, but in tones that held such an undercurrent of eagerness that they caused both Manning and the manager to glance at their chief curiously.

Detroit, Mich. — "I am glad to discover a remedy that relieves me from my suffering and pains. For two years I suffered bearing down pains and got all run down. I was under a nervous strain and could not sleep at night. I went to doctors here in the city but they did not do me any good."

Another Case. Philadelphia, Pa. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is all you claim it to be. About two or three days before my periods I would get bad backaches, then pains in right and left sides, and my head would ache. I called the doctor and he said I had organic inflammation. I went to him for a while but did not get well so I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking two bottles I was relieved and finally my troubles left me. I married and have two little girls. I have had no return of the old troubles." — Mrs. CHAS. BOELL, 2650 S. Chadwick St., Phila., Pa.

Dinner Stories

A stunning specimen of the Princeton Tiger was fondly holding the hand of the pretty little Vassar lass, and at last he approached the leading subject courageously.

"I have carefully studied the matter from the scientific point of view, and am thoroughly convinced that we are fitted one for the other."

"Please explain yourself," "It is simply this," he continued, "according to science, which is the only way to approach the subject. You see, you are light and I am dark. You are short and I am tall. You are small and I am large and powerful. You are sprightly, vivacious, I am somewhat sober and phlegmatic. In short, we are opposites, and opposites should marry." "Yes," she replied; "but there are exceptions to all such rules, and I know of one in this case that is sufficient. I can not marry you."

"In what respect is this exception made?" he demanded excitedly.

"You see," she smiled up at him, "you are like me in this: I could never earn my own living." A woman hired a taxicab. The door of the cab was hardly closed before the engine started with a jerk and the cab began to rock madly along, narrowly missing lamp posts, tram cars, policemen, etc. Becoming frightened, the woman rapped on the window of the cab and said: "Please be careful. This is the first time I ever rode in a taxi!" The chauffeur reassured the passenger as follows: "That's all right, ma'am. This is the first time I ever drove one!"

An Aviator Saved Life. At Berek-sur-Mer, near Boulogne, France, a few days ago, an invalid went for a drive in a little donkey cart, which stuck fast on the seashore and began to sink, just as the tide was coming in. His plight was seen by an aviator, who succeeded in attracting the attention of a fisherman, who rescued the invalid.

"Our Personal Guarantee to all Skin Sufferers"

J. P. BAKER & SON.

We have been in business in this town for some time, and we are looking to build up trade by always advising our patrons how to get the best. So when we tell you that we have found the eczema remedy and that we stand back of it with the "manufactory" iron clad guarantee, backed by ourselves, you can depend upon it that we give our advice not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this: If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D.D.D. Prescription. And if it does not do the work, this bottle will cost you nothing. You alone to judge.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash applied to the skin, takes away the itch instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D.D.D. Prescription made by the D.D.D. Laboratories of Chicago, is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel soothed and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment you apply this D.D.D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to skin sufferers here and there and we want you to try it now on our positive no-pay guarantee.

Ask us also about D.D.D. Soap.

Selling Speculative Real Estate

Real Estate sold for a speculation needs entirely different advertising from that of any other.

Here only enough of the present condition of the property is needed to arouse interest, the desire to purchase being aroused by the description of the potential possibilities of the land.

Tell how cheap it is and why; tell of the factors that will serve to increase materially the value.

Example.

 field in Texas. We also grow truck crops that pay from $100 to $500 per
